Build Firm Flesh and Strength By Taking Phosphate

Nothing Like Plain Bitter-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

At the seaside too, the plump well-rounded figure is most admired.

The average person is beginning to realize more and more that the lack of physical strength and nerve exhaustion (frequently evidenced by excessive thinness) are the direct cause not only of the failure to succeed in life's struggle for the necessities of existence, but also for the handicap in one's social aspirations. Compare the thin, sickly, angular frame with the well rounded form which is usually accompanied by the bloom of health and attractiveness.

That millions of people are conscious of this handicap is evident from the continuous appearance in newspapers and magazines of many suggestions proposing various remedies in food or medicine or exercise, either of which might or might not be appropriate for a given case.

Authorities, however, agree that healthy nerve tissue is absolutely essential to a strong, robust body and mind. Weak nerves, while indicated by a multitude of different symptoms, such as nervousness, general irritability, depression, etc., which conditions gradually consume the healthy flesh, leaving only hollows, a flat chest, bony neck and scrawny arms and legs.

Our bodies need more phosphate than most of them are able to extract from the foods we eat. Phosphate, and more phosphate, is the key to the human system which may be taken into the human system as the pure organic phosphate, known as Bitter-Phosphate and sold by Lee & Osmond and good chemists everywhere.

The essential phosphoric acid element in Bitter-Phosphate assimilated by the nerve cells should soon produce a pleasing change in nerve energy, vigor, vitality and strength. With the nervousness, sleeplessness, lack of energy, etc., there is nothing which may be taken into the human system as the pure organic phosphate, known as Bitter-Phosphate and sold by Lee & Osmond and good chemists everywhere.

CAUTION—While Bitter-Phosphate is recommended for the relief of nervousness, general irritability, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

A very pleasant evening was spent Tuesday when young friends of Leslie Carroll gathered at his home on Prospect street to celebrate his twelfth birthday. Refreshments were served at eight o'clock by his mother, consisting of cake, candy, and sandwiches. There was a beautifully decorated table of pink and green with a large birthday cake in the center with twelve large candles on top. Many games were played during the evening. John Kennedy, won the hunt for the dime in the birthday cake. Dorothy Harlan won the girls prize in the peanut hunt and recent trophy won by boys prize in the same event. The party broke up at an early hour wishing to go home and enjoy their birthday and voting Mrs. Carroll a very pleasing hostess.

Another automobile accident occurred on North Main street Wednesday noon between an automobile and a motorcycle. The motorcycle was turning the corner at Third street and struck the auto as it was going towards the city. The motorcycle as badly smashed up and the running board on the auto was badly bent. Nobody was seriously injured. The automobile was a Dodge car and carried a New York license.

William Kern of New London is visiting with his brother on Sixth street.

Henry Boyd of North Main street broke his leg Sunday playing baseball with the Pastime Athletic Club. He was catching a good game, and was trying to put a man out at home when the runner slid into his leg, breaking it. Henry touched the man out, though. Not bad!

The funeral of Sarah Fitch Parker, widow of the late Lewis Hovey, took place Thursday afternoon from her home at 65 Fifth street. Many relatives and friends were in the large attendance and some were from out of town. The casket was surrounded by many local tributes and offerings. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts officiated at the services and he spoke in commendation of the long and helpful life of the deceased. The church whose faith she professed and the community in which her life was passed. Romyer Danforth of New London officiated, and he paid a soulful tribute to the life of the departed who had been a talented school teacher in New London for a number of years. Coroner Still Investigating Groton Crash

Coroner Franklin H. Brown of this city said Thursday evening that he is still investigating the auto crash in Groton early Tuesday morning in which three persons, two men and a girl, were killed and four others severely injured. Coroner Brown said he expected to complete his investigation some time Saturday at which time he would probably announce his verdict. The coroner said there were no new developments in the case Thursday.

Evans in a written deposition has admitted taking some liquor but said that two glasses of whiskey, one at Willow Point and one in New London, were all that he had. He denied being intoxicated, and denied that he was traveling at 50 miles an hour. He admitted that he may have been going thirty miles an hour.

MAY REVAMP STATE CIVIL SERVICE LAW

The matter of revamping the state civil service law will be considered by the civil service commission when it meets today (Friday) in the capitol at Hartford for the purpose of considering its annual report. The members of the commission have been impressed by the fact that there are twenty-six departments connected with the official life of the state which are under the civil service law and twenty-one which are not, that condition is anomalous and that it does not make for the best interests of the state. The checking of the payrolls of the various departments is not, the members of the commission think, on a business basis and they are satisfied that the system does not give adequate protection to the interests of the state.

The suggestion has been made that there should be a master payroll which would include the employees of all departments in the state government and by which payrolls could be properly checked. At present there is no record sufficiently comprehensive to show how many persons are employed by the state, their salaries or their names, each department having its own list.

It is roughly estimated that there are about 1,800 persons in the employ of the state. It has been intimated that the civil service commission, whose only purpose is to improve service rendered by state employees, might favor the substitution of a board made up of business men, having experience as employers, for the present civil service commission. Indeed the statement has been made that it might be better to drop the words "civil service" from the title of the commission and to give it a name that would indicate its supervisory power over employment in the service.

The determination of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn to retire from the civil service commission at the end of his present term, owing to the insolvency of the law, has directed the attention of the public to the necessity of doing something to make it more effective.

PURITAN AND PILGRIM ARE BEING JUNKED

The two famous sound steamers, Pilgrim and Puritan that carried thousands of passengers between Providence, Fall River and New York, a quarter of a century, are now being junked by the Scott Wrecking Company at New London. The hulls of what were once these palatial steamers, have been lying at anchor in New London harbor for the past six years, awaiting conversion into tankers or barges. They were recently purchased by the Scott Company from the New England Navigation Company.

All the wooden superstructure was stripped from the boats soon after the Scott Company came into possession of them, and a great deal of the lumber was sold for chicken coops and bungalows.

The two hulls proved to be too narrow and lumber for tankers or freighters and it was decided to scrap them. The Pilgrim has had workmen dissecting the steel plates with acetylene torches for the past week and are obtaining all metal down to the waterline. The hull was towed across the Thames river to the Groton Iron Works shipyard, where it will be hauled out on the ways and there be stripped to the last plate.

Work will be started on the Puritan immediately, and she will follow her sister ship to the scrap heap.

With the prevailing high price of iron the Scott company expects to reap a harvest from these hulks.

A SONG IN SUMMER

When the days are on fire from the lamp of the sun,
And the long afternoons heal the heart with their peace,
I dream of a time when my life will not run
On those highways of joy where the flowers increase.

Oh, I think of a day when the clouds will drift by
In lordly possession above yonder hill,
While I shall be sleeping beneath the hushed sky.
But dreaming, still dreaming, though lying so still.

Yet well I shall know of this pageant of green,
This splendor that thrills through the wide, aching world;
And see once again what my glad eyes have seen.
When June's splendid banners are proudly unfurled.

The pomp and the glory of summer I'll know;
I shall see the moon rise on the crest of the hill;
And I shall be happy when soft the winds blow,
And smile in my sleep, though I lie there so still!

—Charles Hanson Towne, in Harper's.
